Preface

This bibliography has been prepared by Messrs. Rodger Swearingen and Paul Langer as part of their forthcoming book on communism in Japan to be published later this year under the auspices of the International Secretariat of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Though it will also be included in the book, the bibliography is now being made available in mimeographed form for limited distribution to research workers and libraries, in the belief that it may encourage and facilitate further study of Japanese political and ideological movements. For this reason care has been taken to indicate in what libraries in the United States many of the items listed can be consulted. The compilers will be glad to receive comments and suggestions for future improvements in the list. They, and not the Institute, are responsible for the selection and arrangement of the present list.

Introduction

This bibliography comprises the major Japanese language publications dealing specifically with the Communist movement in Japan. In addition, a certain number of handwritten and typewritten Japanese government documents, now available to scholars in this country, have been included. Material on related subjects has been listed only when the particular item is of special significance.

The bibliography is divided into Primary and Secondary Sources.

Part I, Primary Sources, has been further divided into: (a) Japanese Government Documents (the classification "confidential" or "secret" which appears after certain items, is that of the issuing Japanese government agency) and (b) Japanese Communist Party Publications. The latter category, as defined for use in this compilation, is limited to the following: (1) Publications bearing the imprint of the Communist Party of Japan (2) Books by authors who were at the time of publication of their works either members of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Japan or representatives of that organization in the Japanese Diet.

Part II, Secondary Sources, represents a wide range of political hues. Thus, in this section will be found the writings of Communists and Communist sympathizers, former Communists and a large number of more objective studies.

Japanese periodicals and newspapers are not within the scope of this compilation. However, mention should be made of Zenei (Vanguard), the monthly publication of the Communist Party of Japan and of Akahata (Red Flag), the official Communist newspaper. These two publications represent the most valuable sources of information on the Japanese Communist Party's postwar program, strategy and tactics.

A small number of publications and documents which are of value as an introduction to the subject have been annotated and placed ahead of the bibliography itself.

We should like to express our gratitude to those friends without whose generous assistance this compilation would have been impossible. Dr. Edwin G. Beal and his staff at the Library of Congress greatly facilitated our research by aiding us in the survey of the considerable amount of uncataloged Japanese material. Dr. Nobutaka Ike, Curator of the Japanese and Korean Collections at the Hoover Institute and Library, was most helpful in placing the resources of the library at our disposal. Mr. T. Matsuo and Mrs. Mary C. Wright of the same institution also kindly assisted us. It is impossible to mention the names of our numerous friends in Japan who faithfully keep us supplied with information on current publications.

Selected Items - Annotated

NAIMUSHŌ (Japanese Home Ministry) - Kyōsanshugi undō gaikan (An Outline of the Communist Movement). (1934). Type-written. 192 pp. (LC) A brief outline of the Communist movement in Japan up to and including 1933. Emphasis of the study is upon the numerous organizations labeled by Japanese authorities as "Front Organizations." (Item No. 14)

SHIHŌSHŌ KEIJI KYOKU (Criminal Affairs Division, Japanese Ministry of Justice) - Sayoku zenrekisha no tenkō mondai ni tsuite (On the Conversion of Individuals with Leftist Records). Classified: secret. 1943. 234 pp. (LC) A wartime study prepared by an official of the Japanese Ministry of Justice for use of government agencies. Statistics, case histories and recommendations. Includes official data on Nozaka Sanzō, Kamiyama Shigeo, Kaji Wataru and many others. One of the very few available wartime publications on the subject. (Item No. 37)

ICHIKAWA, Shōichi - Nippon kyōsantō tōsō shōshi (A Short History of the Struggle of the Communist Party of Japan). Tokyo: Shōkō shoin. 1946. 214 pp. (HW) This official history is a revised edition of the late Ichikawa's testimony in the famous Communist trials of the early thirties, published in 1932 by the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Japan (cf. Item No. 73). Practically no names or locations are indicated. Many details have been either omitted or intentionally distorted. This postwar edition contains also a short introduction by the Secretary-General, Tokuda Kyūichi and brief excerpts from the trial proceedings. (Item No. 43)

NOZAKA, Sanzō - Bōmei jūrokunen (Sixteen Years in Exile). Tokyo: Jiji tsūshinsha. 1946. 86 pp. (HW) A counterpart to the Tokuda-Shiga work, Eighteen Years in Prison (Item No. 95). A detailed autobiography by the Japanese Communist leader whose influence is considered by many to exceed even that of the Party Secretary-General.

NOZAKA, Sanzō - Nihon minshuka no tame ni (Toward the Democratization of Japan). Tokyo: Jimminsha. 1948. 216 pp. (LC) Writings and speeches (covering the period 1936-1946); selected by the author as particularly significant. Includes the following: (1) "A Letter to the Japanese Communists," (Moscow, 1936); (2) "To the Japanese Nation on the Occasion of the Sixth Anniversary of the Sino-Japanese Incident," (Yenan, 1943); (3) "The Establishment of a Democratic Japan," (Yenan, 1945); (4) "Revolution by Peaceful Means," (Japan, May 1946); (5) "Toward a Completely Democratic Constitution (Discussions in the Diet)," (Japan, June 1946). (Item No. 81)

SHIGA, Yoshio - Sekai to nippon (The World and Japan). Tokyo: Gyōmeisha. 1948. 218 pp. (SC) A collection of articles written during 1946, 1947 and 1948. Theoretical discussions centering around the controversial 1927 and 1932 Theses, and alleged deviation of Kamiyama Shigeo. The main body of the work is devoted to a critical analysis of Kamiyama's point of view which, in Shiga's opinion, threatens to become "the theoretical foundation for a harmful political deviation." (Item No. 85)

TOKUDA, Kyūichi - Naigai jōsei to nihon kyōsantō no nimmu (The Domestic and Foreign Situation and the Mission of the Japanese Communist Party). Reports covering the period from 1945 through October 1948. Tokyo: Shinrisha. 1949 282 pp. (LC) Basic material for the study of postwar Communist policy. (Item No. 91)

Waga omoide (Memoirs). Tokyo: Tokyo shoin. 1948. 237 pp. (HW) An interesting account of the author's early experiences in the Communist movement. Particularly valuable information on early connections with Chinese Communist and Comintern representatives in Shanghai. (Item No. 93)

KIKUGAWA, Tadao - Gakusei shakai undō-shi (History of Social Movements Among Students). Tokyo: Umiguchi shoten. 1947. 475 pp. (HW) A detailed study of leftwing student movements in Japan, fairly well documented. Covers the period 1918-1931, perhaps stronger on the early period. Contains a useful appendix listing important events by year, month and, in some cases, day. (Item No. 115)

NABEYAMA, Sadachika (Teishin) - Watakushi wa kyōsantō wo suteta (I Discarded the Communist Party). Tokyo: Daitō shuppanbu. 1949. 233 pp. (PC) Essentially an autobiography. One of the best postwar accounts of the Japanese Communist movement up to 1933, when the author renounced the party. Contains also the story of Nabe-yama's life in a Japanese prison and release in 1943. (Item No. 128)

YOSHIOKA, Nobumasa - Nippon kyōsantō no kaibō (An Analysis of the Japanese Communist Party). Tokyo: Kyōyūsha. 1948. 241 pp. (PC) Perhaps the best survey of Communism in postwar Japan. Numerous charts and diagrams enhance the value of the book. (Item No. 162)
